Meet Coal

For Christmas, you'll want to get coal in your stocking! Meet Coal, an adorable one-year-old, 34 lb. lab mix. Being that he's much smaller than a lab, we're unsure what other breeds could be in there. Coal was found dumped in a field on a farm in a rural part of North Carolina. A Good Samaritan took him in and now he's in Connecticut in a foster home ready to find a forever family!

Coal is an absolute lovebug with a sense of adventure! He loves being with his people and wants to be wherever you are. He's a social butterfly who is friendly with all that he meets including other dogs and kids of all ages. He absolutely LOVES children so a family with kids is a must for him, along with a fenced yard and preferably another dog to play with. Coal is very smart, follows commands, and is treat motivated. He'll make a wonderful addition to any home!
